WORK VISA

Many people consider Europe a place of opportunities, and European countries are constantly ranked high in many fields and are some of the most well-developed countries globally. The constant development of countries has created many work opportunities for Europeans and people outside of Europe.

This has increased the number of expats moving to European countries to live and work. Luckily, Europe offers several options for people who wish to work there, with one of the most commonly issued work permits

STUDY VISA

Choosing to study abroad as part of your degree helps broaden your horizons and allows you to gain new perspectives. Being able to travel to another part of the world and explore a new country develops different life skills as well as building confidence. It's also a fantastic opportunity to make new friends from all walks of life and build a global network.

BUSINESS VISA

We know from first-hand experience that deciding on where in Europe you should set up your business can be challenging. With this analysis we try to help you making an educated decision. Our primary target are small and medium-sized businesses looking start up or expand into new markets.

WORK VISA

ABOUT WORK PERMIT DOCUMENT

A work permit document, also known as a work authorization is a document issued by a country's government that allows an individual from another country to legally work there for a specified period of time. This document is typically required as part of the visa application process when seeking employment in a foreign country. It serves as proof that the individual has permission to work in that particular country and may include details such as the duration of employment, specific job restrictions, and any accompanying dependents. The requirements and procedures for obtaining a work permit document vary from country to country.
